i've known marc goldman since 2004. introduced him to Dean Kamen and now he's one of dean's biggest supporters (FIRST, etc).

Marc is a little wacky -- the kind of wacky that might incite you to question him mischievously and that might not sit well with him -- though, i have not said this to him. he has heard a lot about you from this other mutual friend, Mark (whatever).

marc is not a religious Jew, per se, but he hangs with religious Jews and buys into many aspects of this world view.

he's a staunch Republican, was a staunch Bush supporter. He is serious supporter of Israel. he has a kind of brilliance -- his father had started a dairy eons ago. Marc took over at one point, figured out how to automate (designing equipment) everything, expand, and developed numerous new products. He's understated, and has a kind of creativity like this that comes out over time.

I like Marc a lot. He has a sweetness -- for example, since Dean Kamen's dad passed away, Marc has regularly checked in on Dean's mom, taking her to dinner or lunch now and then.

That's the intel from here.

he wants to join any symposia we do do you have any inclination to meet Marc Goldman (who has a friend in common with you, supposedly -- Mark Packer or Parker)?

[REDACTED] is a GREAT mom.
