

To: jeevacation@gmail.com (jeevacation@gmail.com)[jeevacation@gmail.com]
(jeevacation@gmail.com); jeevacation@gmail.com[jeevacation@gmail.com]
From: Dr. Henry Jarecki
Sent: Tue 4/28/2009 4:06:39 PM
Subject: FW: Article on Berhanu Nega + G7

This is the Epstein scholar for 2008. I plan to release your name and to let the Ethiopian government know where you are hiding. He, at least if it's all true, is a mover and shaker. He was elected to be mayor of Addis Ababa till they put him in jail two years ago.

From: Miller, Jim [mailto:[REDACTED]]
Sent: Tuesday, April 28, 09 10:40
To: Dr. Henry Jarecki
Cc: Goodman, Allan; Kaisth, Daniela; Witherell, Sharon; Willcox, Sarah; Dalsimer, Sophie
Subject: Article on Berhanu Nega + G7

Henry,

In addition to the numerous articles about the B. Nega/G7 issue that I sent to you yesterday, following are links to AP/Reuters articles from the past day/two.

Prof denies: <http://www.google.com/hostednews/ap/article/ALeqM5jgY-N8GdYdSvnoZ7VKdSr5XdG8wD97POV200>

35 arrested:
http://hosted.ap.org/dynamic/stories/A/AF_ETHIOPIA_COUP_PLOT?SITE=PASUN&SECTION=HOME&TEMPLATE=DEFAULT

35 arrested: <http://www.reuters.com/article/latestCrisis/idUSLP469244>

SRF has:

- Conducted a current (April 27) Bridger Security check on all 8 closed/active SRF grantees from Ethiopia (including Nega). All came out without matches.
- Conducted Internet searches on these 8 grantees. Of the 8 grantees, only Nega has been noted in the press as part of the recent G7 alleged coup planning.
- We have not found any statements in the press coming from Bucknell.
- SAR- Rob Quinn has no other information than what we know.
- As background, Nega received his PhD from The New School, and taught economics at CUNY from '87-'89 and at Bucknell '90-'94. He returned to Ethiopia in '94.

- referred by SAR January 2006 (while in prison)
- References received from: New School (Dept. of Economics), AAAS (alert), Bucknell University (Dept. of Economics), Center for Economic and Policy Research (DC), Old Dominion University (VA),
- awarded February 15, 2006
- released from prison July 2007
- arrived in US September 2007
- arrived at Bucknell November 2007
- fellowship ended May 2008 (remained at Bucknell; did not apply for renewal)

Below is a cut/paste from a VOANEWS.COM article.

Best,

Jim

Jim Miller
Executive Director
Scholar Rescue Fund
Institute of International Education (IIE)

News
U.S.A.
Africa
Americas
Asia
Europe
Middle
East
Features
Health & Science
Econ & Business
Entertainment
American Life
News Analysis
Special Reports
Pronunciation Guide
Interactive
T2A Chat
My VOA Community
YouTube
Facebook

Kin of Exiled Ethiopian Opposition Leaders Charged in Coup Plot

By Peter Heinlein
Addis Ababa
27 April 2009

Ethiopian President Meles Zenawi (File Photo)

Relatives of two prominent exiled Ethiopian politicians are among 35 people jailed in connection with an alleged plot to overthrow Prime Minister Meles Zenawi's government. Ethiopians shocked by news of the arrests are scrambling to learn the identities of the accused plotters and details of their alleged crimes.

E-mail This Article

Print Version

Top Story

New Zealand Confirms 3 Swine Flu Cases

More Stories

WHO Raises Swine Flu Pandemic Alert to Level 4

Mexican Officials Struggle to Contain Swine Flu Epidemic

WHO Confident in Confirmed Swine Flu Cases in China

Australian Researchers: Sun Face Masks Imp

Twitter
Shows
Shows by Name	Ethiopian officials say they had nothing to add to a statement issued Saturday announcing the arrest of 35 alleged members of Ginbot Seven, an opposition group based outside the country.
In Focus	Ginbot Seven, or May 15th, is the date of Ethiopia's disputed 2005 election. The group's leader, Berhanu Nega, is a charismatic politician who was elected mayor of Addis Ababa in that election. He was arrested afterward, convicted of treason, and sentenced to life in prison along with more than 100 other opposition leaders. All were later pardoned.
Music Mix	Berhanu now lives in the United States, where he is an economics professor at Bucknell University in Pennsylvania.
Editorials	Saturday's government statement said security forces had foiled a terror network formed by Berhanu to wage armed struggle against the government. Spokesman Ermias Legesse said a search of suspects' homes had revealed a cache of weapons, military uniforms and a plan of attack.
Web Services
Podcasts	In a telephone interview Monday, Berhanu confirmed that Ginbot Seven's aim is to overthrow the government by any means possible.
RSS	"Our position is very clear from the beginning. This is an illegal government. This government is in power by coup de etat in 2005. This government has usurped power by force and therefore any mechanism to get rid of an illegitimate tyranny is legitimate as far as we are concerned," he said.
News Feeds	Ethiopian media said those arrested included an active duty army general, Teferra Mamo, said to be leader of Ginbot Seven's military wing. The only other suspect identified was Melaku Tefera, an organizer for the opposition Unity for Democracy and Justice party.
Mobile	Melaku was among the opposition leaders convicted of treason and later pardoned following the 2005 election. He now joins UDJ leader Birtukan Mideksa, who was re-arrested earlier this year and ordered to serve out her life sentence.
•	Berhanu Nega says he had been told the accused included a cousin of his living in Addis Ababa, and the 80-year old father of Tsige Andargachew, an exiled Ginbot Seven official living in Britain.
•	Berhanu told VOA security forces had surrounded his parents' Addis Ababa home and confiscated their cellphones. "This is a government that accuses your relatives for what you do. Whatever it is that you do. That is why Ato (Mr.) Tsige Andargachew's father is in prison. Maybe my cousin is in prison for the same reason," he said.
Subscribe E-mail Newsletter

Ethiopian officials say they had nothing to add to a statement issued Saturday announcing the arrest of 35 alleged members of Ginbot Seven, an opposition group based outside the country.

Ginbot Seven, or May 15th, is the date of Ethiopia's disputed 2005 election. The group's leader, Berhanu Nega, is a charismatic politician who was elected mayor of Addis Ababa in that election. He was arrested afterward, convicted of treason, and sentenced to life in prison along with more than 100 other opposition leaders. All were later pardoned.

Berhanu now lives in the United States, where he is an economics professor at Bucknell University in Pennsylvania.

Saturday's government statement said security forces had foiled a terror network formed by Berhanu to wage armed struggle against the government. Spokesman Ermias Legesse said a search of suspects' homes had revealed a cache of weapons, military uniforms and a plan of attack.

In a telephone interview Monday, Berhanu confirmed that Ginbot Seven's aim is to overthrow the government by any means possible.

"Our position is very clear from the beginning. This is an illegal government. This government is in power by coup de etat in 2005. This government has usurped power by force and therefore any mechanism to get rid of an illegitimate tyranny is legitimate as far as we are concerned," he said.

Ethiopian media said those arrested included an active duty army general, Teferra Mamo, said to be leader of Ginbot Seven's military wing. The only other suspect identified was Melaku Tefera, an organizer for the opposition Unity for Democracy and Justice party.

Melaku was among the opposition leaders convicted of treason and later pardoned following the 2005 election. He now joins UDJ leader Birtukan Mideksa, who was re-arrested earlier this year and ordered to serve out her life sentence.

Berhanu Nega says he had been told the accused included a cousin of his living in Addis Ababa, and the 80-year old father of Tsige Andargachew, an exiled Ginbot Seven official living in Britain.

Berhanu told VOA security forces had surrounded his parents' Addis Ababa home and confiscated their cellphones. "This is a government that accuses your relatives for what you do. Whatever it is that you do. That is why Ato (Mr.) Tsige Andargachew's father is in prison. Maybe my cousin is in prison for the same reason," he said.

Weapon Against Swine Flu

Asian Tourism Industry Braves Flu Fears

Schwarzenegger California is Addressing Swine Threat

Sri Lanka Pledges Stop Shelling, AI Strikes of Tamil Rebels

Obama Seeks Improved Relations With Muslim World

US Holding Talks Cuba on Obama Outreach

Presidential Plan Photo Op Scares Some New Yorkers

Several Ethiopian opposition figures expressed concern over the arrests. Parliament Member Bulcha Demeksa agreed that Ginbot Seven would be considered an illegal organization under Ethiopian law, but he expressed skepticism about the reports of a coup plot.

"I honestly believe this is not true. The government of Ethiopia has used such accusations so many times to make it a reason to arrest people ... The election approaching. Anybody who could be a viable candidate for an opposition party will be caught by this net," he said.

A government spokesman said he was busy in meetings but said told VOA further details of the arrests and the coup plot would be forthcoming in the next few days. He declined to speculate on what charges might be filed against those detained, but said the suspects would soon be brought before a judge to hear the charges read.

 E-mail  Print

- Digg
- Yahoo Buzz
- Facebook
- del.icio.us
- StumbleUpon

VOA News:

Web Services:

About VOANews.com:

News | Programs | Learning English | About VOA

Podcasts | News Feeds | Mobile | Webcasts | Subscribe E-Newsletter

Terms of Use & Privacy Notice | Broadcasting Board of Governors | Link to Us | Site Map | FAQs | Contact VOANews | Job Opportunities