

To: Jeffrey Epstein[jeevacation@gmail.com]
From: mathew mahaffey
Sent: Fri 5/15/2009 1:41:09 AM
Subject: Re: pics

I learned a good lesson with that area this winter. The cold fronts have been very strong in the past couple of years and what I thought might do well did not. Those two areas are much windier than I anticipated, so I would probably use the coconut there as well. The Panama Hat palms will take wind and salt but I would use them in a more protected area like the roadway to the #1 flagpole from the main house

On Thu, May 14, 2009 at 9:35 PM, Jeffrey Epstein <jeevacation@gmail.com> wrote:

what about around the fire pit area and at the second flag pole house

On Thu, May 14, 2009 at 9:34 PM, mathew mahaffey <[REDACTED]> wrote:

I would say that your best bet for that area is going to be the coconut palms because of their salt tolerance. That is such a salty and windy point that you will be somewhat limited to what will grow well. There are many salt tolerant materials that will still work though.

On Thu, May 14, 2009 at 8:56 PM, Jeffrey Epstein <jeevacation@gmail.com> wrote:

they look great, for the landscape between the master and office what would you choose.

On Thu, May 14, 2009 at 8:45 PM, mathew mahaffey <[REDACTED]> wrote:

Sorry this took so long. Between the road flooding and I was running the store for 7 days while my partner was on vacation, could not make it to the farm before dark to get pictures. Still working on some numbers for the nursery idea. Best regards. Mat

----- Forwarded message -----

From: Loren Mahaffey <[REDACTED]>
Date: Thu, May 14, 2009 at 8:39 PM
Subject: pics
To: [REDACTED]

Loren Mahaffey

www.5elementstudio.com