Subject: Re: Einstein on Science

instead i suggest " science cannot YET explain," . otherwise too much of a declaration

I will look up the video and I agree with every point you make </iv>
But we agree - I think- that scientism is misleading and can be dangerous.
Science cannot explain experience including the experience of doing science
Science cannot explain consciousness
Science is an activity in consciousness
Theories are conceived in consciousness
Experiments are designed in consciousness
Observations are made in consciousness
Consciousness is the ontological primitive not matter Matter is the experience of sensations and sense perceptions in consciousness . It does not exist as such !
Consciousness must be included in expanded science even though there is no equation for it
I'm off to lecture
Wishing you a joyful day

Yes sir! You said it when we first met
Science is one language in consciousness
There are other languages consciousness uses - art music poetry love d=light pleasure joy and of course suffering as well

Consciousness is life

It would be possible to describe everything scientifically, but it would make no sense; it would be without meaning, as if you described a Beethoven symphony as a variation of wave pressure.
