A=e you looking to invest into this thing? If so , I'd suggest a few th=ngs:

A) because problem (1) above is not &nb=p;completely solvable, they need to have a plan. Part of it is technical (d= continuous code auditing, pentesting, on board proper crypto people, etc),=the other part is legal/financial and pr. Specifically they should have som= kind of insurance and they should have a pr disaster recovery plan. A big d=sadvantage of decentralized system is that you don't have anybody to trust a=d you don't have a closed network that can make stealing money hard, they n=ed to address that

B) realistically nobody i= going to attack them until they become significant enough from a financial=standpoint. This gives them time to work on A. That said they should avoid m=king enemies (the "disgruntled" hacker type)

It's a very dumb platitude but "security is a process= is true.

Unrelated: checkout edge.org, I think you'll like it.
