Hi Jeffrey. Any thoughts on who might fund the exceptional minds =rogram. I'm still trying to do it with Templeton but it's=a slog. It might be better to have someone else fund it... =ncluding a 40K prize (instead of 10K) for 10 fellows and all of the =osts including overhead, it's about $2.5M / yr. Do you think =E2◆◆we" could get Bill or Leon to do it?

I still have some money left over from Bill and Leon, but I spent a lot =f it on last year's design event, on our faculty search, =etting this program going, launching the journal, and some other things =nd since this is an annual thing, probably better to find someone who =an fund it annually.

I can also ask Reid, but he's not really a "Science"=guy but I guess he's sort of interested.

Anyone else you think we should talk to?

Obviously, I can provide more details. It's the whole system to =earch, convened and manage a process.

Maybe we can discuss at TED?

I'll be looking for good candidates at TED so let me know if you =now of any too.
