Not fixed would be corr=ct, better to say, not operating correctly, one pump is only needed to tra=sfer Aux tank fuel, before FAA mandated Circuit protection we operated two=pumps in Aux tanks to Transfer,

Monday I l=;m having Neil from Banyan work with Larry Morrison to check wiring, =/div>
Morrison and Peter Swift from Quite Wing think its possible ther= is an internal leak inside tank and plumbing that causes one pump to Cavi=ate when both pumps are selected on / only in flight.
It d=esn't make sense why system is operating normal on ground, and in flig=t we get at least one pump Low PSI light on.

The only diff=rence with ground operation is fuel demand from Engines at high power. Or =ensitivity of UFI protection circuit box again.

The tanks have to be removed July of this year for lower fuselage ins=ection. in order to check internal plumbing, tanks have to be removed acco=ding to Morrison also.

B727 training:

Dave, Chris Higgins and myself will a=tend B727 recurrent training in Miami, due to FAR125, we have to attend ev=ry 6months. I'll schedule January 11th and 12th at PanAm in Miam=.
I feel more comfortable with AUX tanks, since any one pu=p works in AUX system. This gives me good redundancy.

=div>Is Jan 11th and 12th for B727 class ok for Dave, Chris and I?

Thx,
