Your grandma, old as he is, has been giving annual recitals, new repertoire every year. There were three small, meaning 50 seats, recital halls in piano stores on 58th St between Broadway and 7th. BUT, all closed. So, me thinks, what about that nice grandson's house. Would it hold 50 people, does he even have musical evenings, would he think about grandma inviting a bunch of elderly hoodlums? I know it's out there and unlikely, but before I give up for this season I must ask.
