

---

From: jeffrey E. <jeevacation@gmail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, September 23, 2015 4:15 PM
To: [REDACTED]
Subject: Fwd:

----- Forwarded message -----

From: [REDACTED] <melusineru@poli@gmail.com> [REDACTED] >
Date: Thu, Jul 16, 2015 at 7:07 PM
Subject: Re:
To: "jeffrey E." <jeevacation@gmail.com <mailto:jeevacation@gmail.com>>

Jeffrey,=div style="color:rgba(0,0,0,0.701961);font-family:UICTFontTextStyleBody;font-size:17px;text-decoration:-webkit-letterpress">

I said more than ten thousand. I perfectly understand Cartier but this makes me sick. It's the first time someone makes me weight what I have bought when it was offered as a present. When you decide to give your card to someone and say: "buy what you want" ( shoes and belts, this is what I bought ) I assume you mean what you are saying. Asking for the price later on is not very elegant. I felt really uncomfortable. If the money was such a problem for you, you could have told me and give me a budget and I would have fitted in it. In this case I would have perfectly understood. I really appreciated the act of handing me your card but if I would have none that this would have been your reaction to it, I wouldn't have bought anything at all. Sorry, it was my mistake.

--

please note

The information contained in this communication is confidential, may be attorney-client privileged, may constitute inside information, and is intended only for the use of the addressee. It is the property of JEEUnauthorized use, disclosure or copying of this communication or any part thereof is strictly prohibited and may be unlawful. If you have received this communication in error, please notify us immediately by return e-mail or by e-mail to jeevacation@gmail.com <mailto:jeevacation@gmail.com> , and destroy this communication and all copies thereof, including all attachments. copyright -all rights reserved