look =t hi.. he says he has worked with ASU counsels before.. is not =dversarial.

I have a few local suggestions but not =ure..

Here is from a law professor at ASU:

"One of the problems in finding a top =aw firm in this town that can be adverse to ASU is that ASU uses most =f these firms, including those I have worked =ith or know people at and thus can recommend on =ersonal experience. For both for ethical and business reasons, =owever, these firms can't or do not want to be adverse to ASU. The =nly firm that I know something about that might be right for you and =ould take your case is Martin & Bonnett <http://www.martinbonnett.com/> I know them because =hey represented a tenured ASU professor fired on what seemed to =any of us at the law school to be a trumped up charge of plagiarism. =She had plagiarized some material in her syllabus for which the =niversity committee hearing hear case recommended a =elatively light sanction. Crow rejected these findings and fired =er. (The scuttlebutt was that she was a major pain in the ass in =er department and that was the real reason she was fired.) My =ate colleague Joe Feller worked closely with this firm and arranged for =he AAUP to file an amicus brief which many members of the law =aculty, including me, signed. Crow was none to happy about this, btw. =y sense is that although the professor lost her case (courts =re reluctant to intervene in these types of case), =artin & Bonnett did a good job. So when my dean =ired a secretary assigned to me, Paul Bender, and several others =including another former dean), Paul and I contacted the firm for =ome advice. If you would like my help to find a firm in another =ity, especially LA, I should be able to offer you more =election and a more definite and knowledgeable recommendation. Jim =nbsp;"

Just had an hour consult with Justin Dillon of KaiserDillon, probably the premiere Title IX firm in the country (you can google all the work they have done). He is presently doing 2 cases at ASU, and it turns out he read physics of star trek when he was in college and was a big fan. He seemed excellent and knew just how the system works (and has already once forced ASU to end a suspension of a student because they violated his rights).

Anyway, we talked strategy etc, and I am confident if I went with a lawyer to keep me in my position at ASU they are the firm. They are not cheap though. $15K retainer, and he expected the full process would probably be between $50-100K. ;

Let me be blunt. Can you help? I have already lost over $100K in speaking engagements this year alone. ;

whatever the answer is.

There is no one else I would ask so bluntly, nor anyone else I will be absolutely fine with

Lawrence
