look at hi.. he says he has worked with ASU counsels before.. =s not adversarial.

I have a few local suggestions but not =ure..

Here is from a law professor at ASU:

"One of the problems in finding a top =aw firm in this town that can be adverse to ASU is that ASU uses most =f these firms, including those I have worked =ith or know people at and thus can recommend on =ersonal experience. For both for ethical and business reasons, =owever, these firms can't or do not want to be adverse to ASU.
The =nly firm that I know something about that might be right for you and =ould take your case is Martin & Bonnett <http://www.martinbonnett.com/> I =now them because they represented a tenured ASU professor fired on =hat seemed to many of us at the law school to be a trumped up charge of =lagiarism. (She had plagiarized some material in her syllabus for =hich the university committee hearing hear case recommended a =elatively light sanction. Crow rejected these findings and fired her. (The scuttlebutt was that she was a major pain in the ass in her department and that was the real reason she was fired.) My late colleague Joe Feller worked closely with this firm and arranged for the AAUP to file an amicus brief which many members of the law faculty, including me, signed. Crow was none too happy about this, btw. My sense is that although the professor lost her case (courts are reluctant to intervene in these types of case), Martin & Bonnett did a good job. So when my dean hired a secretary assigned to me, Paul Bender, and several others (including another former dean), Paul and I contacted the firm for some advice. If you would like my help to find a firm in another city, especially LA, I should be able to offer you more selection and a more definite and knowledgeable recommendation. Jim

Just had an hour consult with Justin Dillon of KaiserDillon, =robably the premiere Title IX firm in the country (you can google all =he work they have done). He seemed excellent and knew just how the system =orks (and has already once forced ASU to end a suspension of a student =ecause they violated his rights).

Anyway, we talked strategy etc, and I =m confident if I went with a lawyer to keep me in my position at ASU =hey are the firm. They are not cheap though. $15K retainer, =nd he expected the full process would probably be between $50-100K. =nbsp;

Let me be blunt. Can you help? I have already =ost over $100K in speaking engagements this year alone. =nbsp;

There =s no one else I would ask so bluntly, nor anyone else I will be =bsolutely fine with whatever the answer is.
