You expressed a special enthusiasm about 'Space=/strong>' when speaking to Faith about Dylan and coincidentally I read about a tiny company about to go public that is primed to kill off Comcast, Verizon, AT&T, Cox and Charter in one lean shot by putting a constellation of micro-routers in low earth orbit (=50 miles vs 22,000 miles). Each router, the size of a desk, sends ten beams down to earth. Each beam covers 400 miles. Phones and computers will receive a strong signal anywhere on earth. Lastly, they mentioned some backers - Masa ("The Bill Gates of Japan"), Virgin Atlantic, Airbus, Qualcomm and Coca Cola.

The above information was sent to me in the mail with the purpose of enticing me to subscribe to their monthly newsletter. In exchange, the author will reveal the name of this company and how to invest and profit from same. Supposedly, this company is positioning for an IPO.

=div>Have you heard about this company and what they are supposedly about to do or is this a bunch of crap?
If it is a 'real deal', can you advise me how to profit from it?
