Anna.

When Leighton asked why we didn't replace the barge... I decided for our benefit, that we needed to know how much that would cost.

I contacted a Navy friend in Washington and asked who is building the Navy replacements for the LCM 8 like ours.

I am happy to say one of the Principals of that company called me and gave me 30 min of his time to answer my question and discuss the new program. = My guess was 2 Million Dollars was the price.. He said it would be more like 3 or 4 Million..

He said that the unit we had and the work we are doing to it is not in vain as it is a very valuable piece of gear.

I have the contact and he has offered to send figures if necessary to back up these assertions, within reason as they aren't making any money quantifying our project for value.

I hope this helps ease some of the concerns that people have.. And... Make it more Well.... Safer for us. ???
