billable hours $695/hour.. 3 fronts..

1. defense and offense with ASU counsel and office.. his point, which I agree with, is that it is much better to get universities not to make mistakes than to get them to backtrack... he will talk to them about rights, constitutional and otherwise, procedural issues, get information with adequate time, etc.. btw he already says that as a state university nothing I am accused of regarding inappropriate communication is relevant.. by law and precedent.. also he says that the university as a public university is in principle not even allowed to police my conduct in other locations..
2. investigation... they have investigators not only research complainants but also get people who can give positive input..
3. I forgot the third thing.. ;oh yeah.. research the law for relevant cases.

He is emailing me stuff tonight..

Just had an hour consult with Justin Dillon of KaiserDillon, probably the premiere Title IX firm in the country (you can google all the work they have done). He is presently doing 2 cases at ASU, and it turns out he read physics of star trek when he was in college and is a big fan. He seemed excellent and knew just how the system works (and has already once forced ASU to end a suspension of a student because they violated his rights).

Anyway, we talked strategy etc, and I am confident if I went with a lawyer to keep me in my position at ASU they are the firm. They are not cheap though. $15K retainer, and he expected the full process would probably be between $50-100K. ;

Let me be blunt. Can you help? I have already lost over $100K in speaking engagements this year alone. ;

There is no one else I would ask so bluntly, nor anyone else I will be absolutely fine with whatever the answer is.
