
From: [REDACTED]
Sent: Thursday, July 16, 2015 11:08 PM
To: jeffrey E.
Subject: Re:

Jeffrey,

I said more =hen ten thousand. I perfectly understand Cartier but this makes me sick. I='s the first time someone makes me weight what I have bought when it w=s offered as a present. When you decide to give your card to someone and s=y:"buy what you want" (shoes and belts, this is what I bought)=I assume you mean what you are saying. Asking for the price later on is no= very elegant. I felt really uncomfortable. If the money was such a p=oblem for you, you could have told me and give me a budget and I would hav= fitted in it. In this case I would have perfectly understood. I really ap=reciated the act of landing me your card but if I would have none that thi= would have been your reaction to it, I wouldn't have bou=ht anything at all. Sorry, it was my mistake.