

---

From: Barbro Ehnbom [REDACTED]
Sent: Sunday, July 5, 2015 11:21 AM
To: Jeffrey E.
Subject: Gates Foundation curious about Stockholm's life science sector - The official business guide

Fyi..! How are you??=BE too Swedish..

<http://www.investstockholm.com/news/gates-foundation/> <<http://www.investstockholm.com/news/gates-foundation/>>

=/div>

Gates Foundation curious about Stockholm's life science sector - The official business guide

The foundation is already planning a follow-up investment=trip to Stockholm in July to meet several companies on the list.

"We've seen growing international interest in the Hotlist=for a while. The fact that even the Gates Foundation has become aware of th= investment opportunities confirms Stockholm's image as an innovati=e and leading life science region," says Ylva Hultman, Stockholm Bu=iiness Region Development.

The Life Science Hotlist <<http://www.investstockholm.com/life-science-hotlist/>> is curate= by Stockholm Business Region Development. The list is a tool for investors=focused on disruptive commercial innovation in life science. To qualify for=the list, the companies must offer a product or service based on unique aca=emic research that will lead to a commercial solution with global potential= They must also have established themselves in the market with a finished p=oduct or service, alternatively, be close to the commercialization phase.</=>

Barbro C. Ehnbom
Sent f=.o.m. iPhone

=