"Philip Tetlock is one of the very, very best minds in the social scie=ces today. He has come up with one brilliant idea after another, and super=orecasting is no exception. Everyone agrees that the way to know if an ide= is right is to see whether it accurately predicts the future. But w=ich ideas, which methods, which people have an actual, provable track reco=d of non-obvious predictions vindicated by the course of events? The answe=s will surprise you, and have radical implications for politics, policy, j=urnalism, education, and even epistemology—how we can best gain kn=wledge about the world we live in."
