Does God have a place in =1st century human affairs? For many, the answer is an unapologetic yes. =elief in a higher power, they argue, is the foundation of human =consciousness and the soul of all social, political, and scientific =progress. Further, some claim, humans are biologically predisposed to =mbrace religion and require faith to live moral lives. Others are far =ore skeptical. For them, adherence to faith and religious tradition =erves only to fracture communities and prevent humanity from embracing = more enlightened, reasoned, and just social order. As we look to the =uture in uncertain times, should spirituality and religion play a =entral role in human evolution, innovation, and discovery? Or has God =ecome obsolete?

This event will be covered by media.

Thank you,
