Dear Mr. Epstein,

Deepak thought that you might enjoy this upcoming event since it's a different from the typical invites. You and your guest(s) are welcome to join as his guests the Intelligence2 Debate, The More We Evolve, The Less We Need God <<https://www.intelligencesquared.us/debates/more-we-evolve-less-we-need-god#vote>> , with Michael Shermer, Anoop Kumar and Heather Berlin? (Note: Heather just replaced Rebecca Goldstein). In this engaging format, you will participate by casting your vote where you stand: For the Motion or Against the Motion. Please let me know ASAP so I can reserve your VIP tickets.

Does God have a place in 21st century human affairs? For many, the answer is an unapologetic yes. Belief in a higher power, they argue, is the foundation of human consciousness and the soul of all social, political, and scientific progress. Further, some claim, humans are biologically predisposed to embrace religion and require faith to live moral lives. Others are far more skeptical. For them, adherence to faith and religious tradition serves only to fracture communities and prevent humanity from embracing a more enlightened, reasoned, and just social order. As we look to the future in uncertain times, should spirituality and religion play a central role in human evolution, innovation, and discovery? Or has God become obsolete?

This event will be covered by media.
