Jeffrey,

I don't have all the answers, but all I hear from you=are critics, critics and critics. I have done many efforts since I left California, this is why I get angry when I hear those things from you. How can you criticise me so much without knowing anything of what I did ?! Incredible. I told you It's not easy for me since I have =any people around me confusing me all the time but I just can't =gnore them (since they are part of my life), even if you are right.=I'm trying to find a way of making everyone happy but it's no= easy. You should understand...

I'm also aware there is a huge gap between us: power, knowledge, experience =ge...everything ! We both know you will always win. I am very conscious of=the fact that you and I are not at the same level at all and this "re=ationship" is totally imbalanced... I will never pretend to know more =han you do. It's impossible...

I=understand I need to learn many things if I want to improve and I'=m happy and willing to learn from you. I think you are great. Since I=#39;ve met you I perceived you like a mentor but If all the time I say som=thing you get nervous, how can I learn? Instead of saying: "listen you are wrong= because..." You say the opposite "since you seem to have all the answers, it makes little sense to continue these co=versations." I don't believe it's very mature... I always believed discussions went both ways. Maybe I'm wrong. You should be more tolerant.

Thank you for hanging on me, I appreciated..
