My dear Jeffrey,

I'm so sorry for a delayed response, I saw your email this morning and then got lost in my work.</=iv>

The CEO of Liaigre has asked me to do their CAD work, over and above what I am doing, and has asked me to propose an hourly rate that I will be paid. They do not have anyone in the US that is solely responsible for this at the moment.

I met with a man=at Andrew Farkas's designers (Daniel Romueldez) office - Steven - I really liked him but he says they don't exactly have a position open but =anted to meet me anyway. He was a little concerned with the international =hing and how they would keep me on after the fall if I were to work with them.

I am applying to jobs posted to Parsons and on LinkedIn, ones that would offer more than Liaigre does.

<=r>

What I wanted to ask is:

1. Whether =e should decrease what you give me by at least the amount of what Liaigre =ill give me for my drafting so that I am taking less from you 2. As I have 3-4 days off every alternate weekend (when I am not at whitney) could it be helpful if I go and work for, and help Karen on =b>LSJ on these days? I could also cancel the Whitney if it could be helpful to you.

I love you always
