yup
i think there is one to be had i think i know how to do it or at least one of a few ways researchers currently chasing the apolipoproteins and neurfibrillary t=ngles but those really are the end products there is likely to be a metabolite that is unique to the process not sure why the alzheimer agenda is one that people fear but sort of =gnore in terms of research - feels very stale to me would love to be doing real stuff instead of development BLAH designing my own bras...for myself and my friends. they are pretty coo=. :-)
