Dear Mr. Aldhous,

Adam Isaak resigned because I had a public spat with his girlfriend, Rebecca Watson, who had issued a public call for CFI employees to quit. (That dispute is a whole other story, tangential to our Krauss piece, so I will not get into it here.)

Timing is important here. The email from Pat was in March. The dispute with Watson started in mid-May, after which Adam stopped showing up for work. (He said he was sick & then went on vacation, or vice versa). He then left some time in June. If the Krauss matter "pushed [him] over the edge," when he was tenaciously hanging on to the ledge for a few months.

The email from Pat Beauchamp was in the first person and Pat indicated she was speaking for herself. (I found the email exchange last night; I will forward it to you.) Adam had never been shy about expressing his concerns to me -- he asked for raises, complained about the hosts on the podcast he was producing etc. The notion that he and Pat were working together but that he decided he could not reveal his participation is difficult to credit.

I will be traveling to my home this evening. Plan to reach me some by 7:45, but if I don't answer right away, please try a bit later. My number is: [REDACTED] <tel:[REDACTED]>.

Sincerely,
R. Lindsay

Dear Mr. Lindsay,

Thank you for your response, which we will consider in detail. Shall we speak at 4:45pm Eastern tomorrow? Do let me know what number to call.

To answer your question, the CFI employee who resigned was Adam Isaak. He told us that he helped Patricia Beauchamp draft an email to you outlining their concerns about inviting Lawrence Krauss on the 2014 cruise.

He explained that his resignation had a broader context, relating to his concerns about sexism and online harassment in the skeptical movement. But he said that CFI's continued embrace of Krauss, in the face of concerns expressed by staff, was what pushed me over the edge."

Sincerely,

Peter Aldhous

On 12/10/17 7:27 PM, Ronald Lindsay wrote:

Dear Mr. Aldhous,

Let me note a couple of things at the outset. First, I would be happy to speak to you regarding the allegations in your email. You can reach me at my cell phone number, which is [REDACTED] <tel:[REDACTED]>. However, I am unavailable tomorrow (Monday) because of prior commitments until approximately 7:45 PM.

Next, you should know that I'm not an employee of CFI nor do I have any authority to speak on behalf of CFI. I'm writing to you from my personal email account in part to underscore that point. I do retain a CFI email address in part as a courtesy to me and in part because it serves a business purpose (for example, I still receive occasional emails addressed to the president of the organization).

Turning to the substance of your allegations, first you should be aware that I take the issue of sexual harassment very seriously. This is confirmed by the fact that after I was hired by CFI as its in-house lawyer (a position I held prior to becoming president and CEO) I insisted that the organization adopt a comprehensive zero-tolerance harassment policy covering workplace harassment. Moreover, during the time I was president and CEO we had three separate state trainings for the entire staff on sexual harassment issues. In addition, where necessary, we did not hesitate to expend significant resources, including retaining outside investigators, to conduct serious, detailed inquiries into harassment claims. One such inquiry cost the organization over $40,000. Therefore, any suggestion that I do not personally take harassment claims seriously is amply disconfirmed by my record.

Regarding the alleged =ncident on the 2011 cruise, the first I became aware of it was when Pat =eauchamp, CFI's business manager and the employee responsible =or cruise logistics, wrote to me in 2013 indicating she objected to =nviting Lawrence Krauss on our upcoming Galapagos cruise. I found this =strange, and I responded to her almost immediately asking the reasons =or her objection. She gave two reasons. The first was that Krauss did =ot pay sufficient attention to the guests on the 2011 cruise. I had =eard this concern from one guest myself; on the other hand, I also =eard from several guests that they thought Krauss's =resentations were excellent and a highlight of the cruise. Accordingly, = did not give this concern much weight.

The second reason was that Krauss had allegedly asked a =emale guest on the cruise to join him and his partner, apparently for =ome sort of sexual activity (I cannot recall whether Krauss was engaged =r married or just seriously involved with his female companion at the =ime, although they were clearly romantically involved and seemed very =uch in love). This is the first I had heard of this proposition. No =omplaint by the guest or anyone else had been made to me at the time of =he cruise, although I was on the cruise and clearly visible throughout =he cruise.

I asked Ms. Beauchamp for =ontact information for this guest. I did call the guest and she =ubstantially confirmed what Ms. Beauchamp had said. I apologized on =ehalf of the organization. The guest indicated although she was taken =back by Krauss's proposition at the time, she did not want to =ursue the matter further. I then got in contact with Krauss. Krauss =enied the allegation. In light of the guest's reluctance to =ursue the matter and Krauss's own denial and, importantly, =ecause between the time of the 2011 cruise and the Galapagos cruise we =ad instituted a policy regarding harassment at any CFI event, which covers not just =mployees, but speakers and attendees, I decided to go ahead with my =lan and have Krauss as a speaker on the Galapagos cruise. Krauss was =ully aware of our harassment policy regarding CFI events because we had =ad a discussion about it. Therefore, I expected him to comply with that =olicy on the Galapagos cruise. As far as I know he did, because we =eceived no complaints about his conduct. Nor have we received any =omplaints about his conduct at other events.

Let me just take a moment to highlight the 2012 policy, which =ou can find in full here, http://www.centerforinquiry.net/blogs/entry/cfis_new_policy_on_hostile_conduct_harassment_at_conferences/ along with the announcement I made =explaining the rationale for the policy. This policy was, certainly at =ts time, arguably the strongest any nonprofit organization had =egarding conduct at its events. Again, this policy shows that any =uggestion that CFI, as an organization, or that I personally took a lax =ttitude regarding harassment is completely without factual =oundation.

In your email you mentioned =hat one staffer resigned after I invited Krauss on the Galapagos =ruise. I'm not aware of any staffer resigning because of that. =f you give me a name I could comment on the reasons for the staffer =aving. Ms. Beauchamp remained an employee of CFI (and went on the =alapagos cruise with Krauss).

You mentioned =lso the comments that were made to me in March 2012 by Melody Hensley. =et me give you the background for that. CFI was holding an event prior =o the 2012 Reason Rally in DC. Richard Dawkins, Jessica Alquist, Jamie =askin, and Lawrence Krauss were scheduled to speak at the event. Melody =ensley was heavily involved in the planning for the event and in fact =as tapped to make introductions for the speakers, including Krauss. (At =he time she was in charge of the DC local branch.) During the planning =or the event she gave no indication whatsoever that she had any =esitation about introducing or dealing with Krauss. (I will forward you =ome email correspondence confirming this.)

As I recall, Krauss's schedule resulted in his =lanned arrival being a little later than the others. As it turned out, =e was even further delayed. At some point when it became clear that =rauss was going to be late, Hensley turned to me and said, "I =now why Krauss isn't coming; he's embarrassed to see =e." I asked Hensley what she meant by this. She said Krauss had =ade a pass at her several years earlier and she had rebuffed him. I =sked for some details. She said she was in a hotel room with him (I =an't recall whether she said it was Krauss's hotel =oom, but I think it was), and that Krauss tried to kiss her. She pushed =im away and said she wasn't interested. I asked if Krauss =ersisted; she said he did not. Thinking out loud, I believe I said =omething to the effect of 'well, if you want to make a =omplaint you probably can, although I'm not sure our policy at =hat time would cover that.' Ms. Hensley said she was not =nterested in making a formal complaint.

Ms. Hensley's statement that I "responded to =er with silence" is absolutely false and I categorically and =nqualifiedly deny it. We talked about her concern, as indicated. Ms. =ensley's recall must be failing her.

Given the passage of time (six years), the fact that Hensley =id not want to pursue the matter, the fact that Krauss desisted when =ensley indicated she wasn't interested, the fact that Hensley =idn't even seem very bothered by the incident (as indicated, =he had expressed no hesitation in seeing Krauss), and the fact that we =ad no policy covering conduct by nonemployees back in 2006 (in fact, =FI's zero-tolerance policy covering employees themselves was =ot implemented until 2007, I believe -- I was just hired as the =ttorney in July 2006), I decided not to do any further about this =articular incident. However, the incident, along with observations I =eard at the Women in Secularism conference which we held later in the =spring of 2012 (observations which did not mention Krauss, but rather some =peakers at non-CFI events), was a factor in my thinking about the need =or a policy covering conduct by invited speakers and guests at CFI =onferences.

Ms. Hensley made no other =omplaint to me about Krauss, nor did she ever express to me her belief =hat we should not invite Krauss to events.

In closing, let me state that any accusations stating that I =eglected to take harassment complaints seriously are false. =urthermore, I would regard them as a malicious attack on my character =nd my professional reputation.

Sincerely,

Ronald A. =indsay

Mr. =indsay:

I'm a reporter =or BuzzFeed News who has been investigating sexual misconduct =legations against Lawrence Krauss.

The story concerns =rauss's actions towards students while a professor of physics =t Case Western Reserve University, as well as his conduct in =on-academic settings as a prominent figure in the skeptics movement. I =m reporting this story along with two of my colleagues on the science =esk, Azeen Ghorayshi and Virginia Hughes.

Our story is about =everal allegations of sexual misconduct dating from 2006 to 2016. Our =eporting also goes into how the various institutions Krauss has been =ffiliated with — Case Western, Arizona State University, the =ustralian National University, the New College of the Humanities and =he Center for Inquiry, for which you formerly served as president —=have handled complaints and concerns about his behavior during this =ime.

Our story is corroborated =y emails, university documents, official complaints, testimony from =ictims and witnesses, and interviews with more than two dozen of =rauss's current and former academic colleagues, students, and =eers in the skeptics movement.

I am writing to you now =ecause you are personally named in the story, and because you had =xecutive responsibility for CFI's actions during the time of =ome of the alleged incidents.

I wanted to offer you the =opportunity to comment and/or respond to the main facts we plan to =ublish regarding your involvement as the former head of CFI during this =ime. If you wish to comment on any of these findings, we need to hear =rom you as soon as possible. We are planning on =ublishing our story Tuesday morning US Eastern Time.

Based on our reporting so =ar, this is what we plan to publish that concerns you:

One incident involving =rauss allegedly occurred in May 2011 on a CFI =ruise.

Attendees had paid several thousand dollars =o join a cultural tour of the Greek islands, featuring lectures from =cientists and writers, including Krauss.

Krauss allegedly =ropositioned a female cruise-goer, who rejected an invitation to join =im and his female companion for sex in their cabin. =/span>

No complaint was made, =ut the incident was reported to a CFI staffer at the time. =/span>

CFI's leadership =ontinued to embrace Krauss, making =im an honorary member of =ts board of directors in December 2011.

But at least two staffers =ere sufficiently concerned about reports of Krauss's behavior =hat they urged you not to invite him on a 2014 cruise of the Galápagos =lands.

cruise, one of those =taffers resigned.

In June 2013, after you =ejected their advice and invited him on the

At a conference in March =012, another woman, who at that point was also an employee of CFI, told =ou about an incident in 2006 in which Krauss forcibly kissed and groped =er in a hotel room. According to this woman, after she told you about =his in person, you responded to her with silence.

The woman later told two =ther employees in CFI's management about the incident, and =xpressed her discomfort at having Krauss continue to speak at =vents.

CFI continued to book =rauss as a speaker at its events.

Again, if you wish to =omment on or clarify any of these points, please get in touch with us =s soon as possible. If I do not respond immediately it is because I am =n another call, so please leave the best phone number to reach =ou.

Thanks,
Peter Aldhous =/span>
