We're embracing our adventurous side this week at Jetsetter, with drives at a private game reserve, days spent in a fairy chimney in Turkey and nights spent in a mirrored cube treehouse in Sweden (yes, really). Start the week off with some unique properties, including the historic Jumeirah Essex House in New York and Boston's Liberty Hotel, a luxuriously reinvented former prison (again - yes, really).

For more than a century, Boston's Charles Street Jail housed the city's most notorious criminals. Nowadays, the same building accommodates travelers in one of the world's most show-stopping reinventions. Unveiled in 2007 as the Liberty Hotel, the original 19th-century prison has been historically and structurally preserved as an eclectic, fierce and fashionable hotel at the base of beautiful Beacon Hill.

A historic property on Central Park South, Jumeirah Essex House has long been a fixture of Old New York. You might recognize its name from postcards showing Essex House's six-story neon sign, which has been perched on the rooftop since the 1930s. The only Jumeirah property in the continental U.S., the 509-room hotel has all the modern amenities (24-hour fitness center, spa and upscale restaurant) without losing its Old World sensibility (elevators retain their gilded Art Deco glory).

Sexy, sunny and smart; The Standard in Miami Beach is redefining the way we think about spa hotels. Near enough to South Beach to be close to the action but removed enough to be relaxing, the property is like no other in town. With a spa that has treatments like "Hurts So Good" and "It's All in Your Mind," The Standard is something new in a city that's seen it all.

Nothing quite says "Southern California" like Orange County: sun, shopping and the beach reign supreme here. Take it all in from the Fairmont Newport Beach, a full-service resort just off of MacArthur Boulevard. Despite its 440-room size, the Fairmont maintains a down-to-earth style and family-friendly vibe, with easy access to Disneyland, Fashion Island, Corona del Mar and Laguna Beach.

In the tiny village of Harads in northern Sweden, the Treehotel is a compound of five individual treehouses built among the native pines of the Lule River Valley. But these aren't the playrooms of childhood. Each treehouse has been uniquely designed by a different architect and includes visually stunning elements, such as a rope bridge entryway, a bright red exterior and a mirrored facade, all at nature's doorstep.

Cappadocia is famous for its bizarre lunar landscapes dotted with the minaret-like stone structures known as "fairy chimneys." And what's surreal on top stays weird deep below the surface. There are cave hotels everywhere in the region, but the irreverent and eclectic aesthetic of the Hezen Cave Hotel makes it a standout, especially in the traditional village of Ortahisar.

Old World European romance, soothing Tuscan color schemes and fresh flowers abound at this exquisite five-star boutique, which feels more like a private estate. The hotel houses enough antique furnishings and Renaissance art for this 19th-century villa to be a museum, and its historical and residential location are equally posh. The Hotel Regency is removed from the crowds, but still within walking distance of all the sights of the Renaissance City.

This historic hotel is coming off a head-to-toe makeover from hip hotelier Liz Lambert, highly regarded for her creative work on the Hotels San Jose and Saint Celcilia. The distinctive property, originally a 1914 Mediterranean Revival mansion, has been reinterpreted in a bold eclectic style, mixing Cuban, Victorian and modern elements. And an enviable setting - on the quiet, recently extended northern stretch of the San Antonio River Walk - makes it a handy base for exploring notable museums, restaurants and shops.

About 90 minutes from the concrete jungle of Sao Paulo lies the Sofitel Jequitimar Guarujá, a paradisiacal outpost in the beachy town of Guarujá. Comfortably installed in a beach lounge and staring out at the Atlantic, your only concern will be whether the coconut water served by the friendly staff is cold enough. Inspired by all things French and with a cosmopolitan outlook (including a highly regarded restaurant), the Sofitel will be your base for all off-beach adventures: tennis, golf and more.

As Brazil's most populous city, São Paulo can overwhelm with its sheer size - all the more reason to stay at Sofitel São Paulo Ibirapuera, located across from 390-acre Ibirapuera Park, a lush urban escape. The 215-room hotel is inspired by all things French, from the lobby's patisserie serving fresh croissants to the tasteful rooms decorated with dark-wood furniture. With two on-site restaurants, an outdoor pool and a tennis court (one of the few hotels in the city to have one), the property ensures a peaceful stay not far from the sights and sounds of São Paulo.

Though the U.S.'s own Grand Canyon makes all travel headlines, southern Peru's Colca Canyon is actually twice as deep and arguably twice as spectacular. Las Casitas del Colca, a collection of 20 boutique houses, offers access to this marvel, deep in the remote Andes in a land where time feels frozen and everything inspirationally foreign. An experience here is one of few in the world that truly merits the "trip of a lifetime" label.

Who wouldn't like a Caribbean island home, at least for a little while? The new Palmyra in elite Rose Hall, an enclave on Montego Bay, offers just that chance, with 125 units that feel more like cosmopolitan condos than ho-hum hotel rooms. Kitchens and living rooms keep things simple; the stunning in-room artwork steals nearly all attention away from the turquoise sea outside (but not quite). And all it takes is one visit to the ESPA to realize: This is Caribbean living at its best.

At Total Tennis, an all-around camp in Saugerties, New York, it's all about perfecting your game. Campers have ten hours of tennis with upbeat pros who coach group sessions as well as one 30-minute private lesson. Between matches, take it easy in a rocking chair on the deck or hit the spa for a one-hour massage. Off the court, that charming away-at-camp vibe comes through in the dining hall and the game room, where old U.S. Open photos hang on the walls. Choose between our two-night packages, from either Friday to Sunday or Sunday to Tuesday, or a three-night package beginning on Sunday, and head upstate to hit the courts, befriend fellow campers and maybe just nail that back-hand you've been working on.

On 70,000 acres of gold grasslands and big blue skies, where the Sneeuberg Mountains meet the semi-arid Great Karoo, is the award-winning Samara Reserve. One of South Africa's largest private game reserves, there are just three luxury lodges dotted across the tranquil and unique surroundings. Here, guests have the rare opportunity to track the elusive cheetah on foot, join in on the community-focused volunteer programs or simply enjoy the five-star services and spectacular setting.

Roam the red earth of the Laikipia Plateau, in the shadow of Mount Kenya, with your own party of Maasai warriors. On this six-day Bush Adventures outing, you'll learn the ways of Africa's noble nomads and master Kenya's great outdoors in the company of its original experts. Wake up to the call of eagles, spend your days tracking big game, and go to sleep under a blanket of stars with the chatter of hyenas in the distance, knowing you're one of the tribe.
