The lifestyle to which you refer carries with more than buying creams clothes phones gadgets. It comes with a responsibility to treat people with respect that work for me or you . It requires a social skill unlike being a solo pilot . It means setting a. Example of generosity . It means being more understanding of those that have less . It means earning peoples respect by your actions. You have yet to earn most things except your pilot license . There you have worked hard and have not suggested that guy know how it should be done , you took directions . This recent trip is a good example , according to you there are only two outcomes either Brice quits and I do what I want or I get nothing done and Brice stays . If you had spoken to Brice in a respectful manner and stopped trying to find fault with everyone , Jenn , things would get done in on quarter the time and with much less Aggro .
