Lisa . thanks,, for your time,and patience if i understand the Kerr e=uations , and your explanation correctly , time and space appear to exchan=e coordinates , inside a black hole. , that assumes that time is uni=irectional. doesn't it appear that if you ran negative time , it wo=ld look like any other explosive transaction. great acceleration. emena=ing from the second horizon outward slowing to a mere expansion . It=would appear that " time" got shot out of the black hole. create= by a space collapse at the singularity.
