In Beijing. Not my favorite place on the world.

Re apartment - I wanted to ask you in person, but it came out during my conversation with Melanie.

I am planning to start spending more time in NYC (a week per month) and would like to have a "home" there (that I can leave my clothes etc). So far I have been always staying in hotels.
Also, I need to find a solution for Sam who is currently leaving with mother and father. Therefore, I am planning to rent some place in NYC to accommodate both of these needs.
Nevertheless I am NOT looking for show off place - I am looking for place to crash and sleep. Bigger studio or 1 bedroom in a non-dorm building will be fine for me.

At the same time SADLY, I still have constraints in budget. With places in Seattle and Boston and Sam having no income - I was thinking of spending 2,000US/month for a place in NYC - which unfortunately will not get me much. Therefore, I was thinking if you have any creative idea - any rent controlled apartment or sublease on any place or something similar?

This is not urgent (I was thinking of August - September) - but if you hear of anything or have any suggestion.

Thank you

B
