From Wendy ref B767
It's =9CGoogles" Boeing

How should I respond? </=iv>

Thx
Larry

Dea= Larry,

Thank you for your inqui=y. The aircraft is owned by Blue City Holdings (Google's avia=ion department) who is known for its high maintenance standards. The a=rcraft has been kept hangered at its base in California.

</=ont>

A detailed tour of the aircraft containing additional photos is ava=lable at our website www.wentworth.aero
<<http://www.wentworth.aero>>

We h=ve just lowered the ask price from $35 million to $22,500,000. Howe4ver mul=iple parties are currently expressing serious intent based on this price re=euction, and one has told us to expect an offer over the Ask. We=should have a clearer picture in the coming weeks.

Kindy note:

· A spare engine, large spare parts packa=e and the stock in a Part 125 certificate can also be made available. If of=interest please call to discuss.

·&nb=p; Substantial restorations were performed on Engs. #1 /#2 a li=tle over 1000/500 hours ago.

- Unlike many operators, BCH has not requested a deviation from full Pt 125, and therefore operates on a full 10% fuel reserve. Operation under a deviation or alternate authority could result in increased range.

Kind regards,</=>

Dear Larry,

Blue City purchased it from Qantas Airlines and converted it at Gore aviation in 2006-2007.

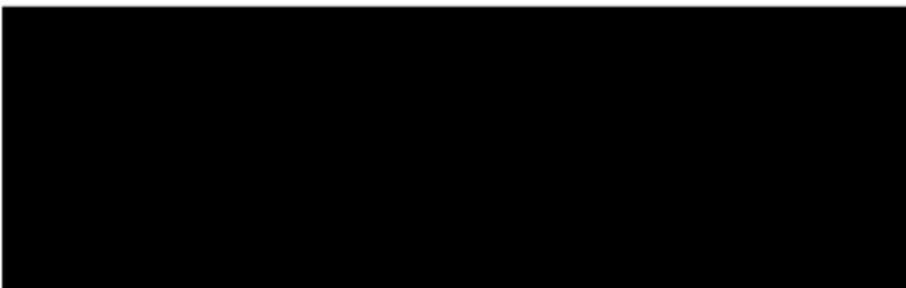

A detailed tour of the aircraft containing additional photos is available at our website - <http://www.wentworth.aero/> Unlike many operators, BCH has not requested a deviation from full Pt 125, and therefore operates on a fuel 10% fuel reserve. Operation under a deviation or alternate authority could result in increased range.

Let me know if you need specifications or additional information.
