Fashion Week comes but twice a year (and yes, it happens during different weeks in every country, so it's pretty much Fashion Week all year round). We're celebrating this year with gorgeous fashion hotels in Europe, with designs by Moschino and Alberta Ferretti. So pack your best Louis Vuitton carry-on, head to the airport and (quite literally) prepare to work the runway. And don't forget about our other properties this week either, with 32 new properties launching, including The Standard New York, the Tides Riviera Maya and many more. Atop a hill on the border between Italy's Romagna and Marche regions sits Palazzo Viviani Castello di Montegridolfo, a lovingly restored medieval castle that has been converted into a romantic hotel. The palazzo has an impressive artistic pedigree - it's part-owned by fashion designer Alberta Ferretti - and the 54 suites within its 14th-century wheat-gold walls range from lush medievalism to dark wood minimalism. But what sets the hotel apart are the striking views - order a sundown Negroni and watch the sky blush pink over the Adriatic.

Inside a revamped Neo-Classical railroad station, the Maison Moschino is at once intimate and alluring. With white furnishings, lanterns fashioned to look like clouds and bedspreads covered in rose petals, the Maison Moschino aesthetic is pure surrealist fairytale. Given the hotel's fashionable pedigree (interiors were designed by Moschino's creative director, Rossella Jardini), it's no surprise that the 65-room hotel is a hit with visiting fashion cognoscenti.

Citadels of Chic. The Gold Standard. Even an hotel en Technicolor. The Standard Hotels have been called a lot of things, but never once "boring." Hotel provocateur Andre Balazs upped the wow factor again with the Standard New York, a temple of all things sexy and sceney, in a building that literally straddles the High Line park in the Meatpacking District.

A maze of pathways slithers through the jungle beside the Caribbean Sea. White crocheted hammocks swing beside pools on secluded terraces. Maya chants drift from the womb-like spa and stars are more important than lights. Built before the Riviera Maya hit the charts, the Tides captures the tranquil, nature-bound essence of the Yucatán peninsula - with appropriate pampering, of course.

Built into a piney 12-acre cliff high above Point Lobos State Natural Reserve, this historic California Craftsman-style retreat looks out over a wild slice of Big Sur coastline declared "the greatest meeting of land and water in the world" by acclaimed landscape painter Francis McComas. Peering down at the surf pounding the rocky shores from the private balcony, it's difficult to disagree. With just 48 recently renovated rooms, this Hyatt pulls off an intimate boutique feel while offering all the accoutrements of a large-scale property, including unparalleled Les Clefs d'Or Concierge service and haute California cuisine at the celebrated Pacific's Edge restaurant.

Bangkok's exotic allure, revered hospitality and traditional luxury have won the world over for more than a century. But the city's relative newcomers, like the Metropolitan Bangkok, are giving the city another sense of pride - stunning symmetries, edgy interiors, skyscraping grandeur and globally trendy outlets (like the socialite hotspot the Met Bar). With a minimalistic-but-chic swagger and a fresh, hip attitude, the Metropolitan Bangkok is emblematic of the contemporary style transforming Bangkok's business and shopping districts.
