1) Sainte Chapelle, Isle de la Cite, 5 minutes west of Notre Dame (towards the nose of the island): walls made of glass; 13th cent; hard to believe until you see it.

2) Saint Denis, commune of Saint Denis, 6 miles north of Paris -- gothic was invented here in mid 1100s; windows with the purest, bluest blue ever achieved. ("The blue is the light," Viollet-le-Duc said.)<=r> most of the church is late 12th cent, but the roses are 100 years later & are far more extraordinary.
