One of our New Year's resolutions: stop letting the traditional January pap pics of celebs on exotic hols get up our noses. How to make that the resolution we don't break this year? Beat them at their own game. We've a few places to turn the heat up this week on Jetsetter, from a golfing paradise in Florida to beachside resorts in Thailand. And then, our personal favourite, the incredible Ladera in St Lucia, perched on a cliff overlooking the Pitons. In fact, the view's so beautiful that they knocked out the front wall in each suite. See, Simon Cowell? Barbados isn't everything.

Luxe Treehouse-style Stays on St. Lucia

Ladera - St. Lucia

Perched on a hillside 1,100 feet above the Caribbean Sea, Ladera offers guests the chance to escape and unplug in luxurious two-story treehouse-style villas and suites. While the accommodations lack TVs, telephones and air conditioning, they do come equipped with private plunge pools, open-air showers and breathtaking views of the sea and St. Lucia's famous Piton Mountains. Popular with honeymooners and couples, Ladera is a place to settle into a comfy lounge chair with a book, take a nap, sip rum punch, take a dip in the pool - and repeat.

A Romantic Retreat on a Thai Beach

On a quiet edge of Chaweng, one of Koh Samui's most famous beaches, this Anantara property is decorated in a gorgeous Asian style. The accommodations are decidedly romantic, and rooms have private balconies, outdoor patios and even individual pools in the villas, all a few steps from the warm sea and pearly white-sand beach. And after a day at the spa or the beach, sipping on a sunset cocktail at the resort's unique treehouse restaurant will feel perfectly natural.

Koh Phangan has a hedonistic reputation from its monthly Full Moon Parties, beloved by backpackers and gap-year youngsters. But the Rasananda, on the opposite side of the island, is pure Thai class. Known for its intimate size and attentive staff, the resort - 44 villas and suites, each with a private pool - matches the surrounding area's natural beauty without being overbearing. The spa's teakwood treatment rooms are disguised by the jungle's flora; the signature bistro serves locally inspired dishes alfresco. Together, it all makes the Rasananda an escape to island paradise.

The brainchild of French fashion designer Christian Lacroix, Hotel le Bellechasse is a 33-room spot on the Left Bank, in the Faubourg St. Germain district. The building itself dates back to 1840, but the interiors have been flamboyantly reimagined by Lacroix so that staying here feels like staying in an elaborate work of art. Close at hand are the banks of the Seine, the Musée d'Orsay, the Louvre and Boulevard Saint-Germain and the Eiffel Tower are a mere 15-minute walk away. Here, Paris is at your (incredibly stylish) doorstep.

The 177-room Strand Hotel brings style back to Manhattan's bustling Garment District. Rising from a block of aging warehouses-turned-offices, this boutique hotel's elegant interiors play off the area's fashionable legacy, and many guestrooms feature unencumbered views of the Empire State Building. All of the city's sights are within easy reach from this midtown locale, and the hotel's rooftop bar, Top of the Strand, is a destination unto itself, with a hip vibe and a stunning view of the iconic skyscraper.

The legendary Cipriani family is known for its namesake bars and restaurants in some of the world's most glamorous cities. Now brothers Ignazio and Maggio - fourth-generation Ciprianis - are lending their pedigree to the boutique hotel world. Their first venture, Mr. C Beverly Hills, opened its custom-designed doors near Rodeo Drive last June, unveiling a high-glamour mix of timeless European design and all the modern touches, plus a hot-spot alfresco restaurant that is quintessential Cipriani.

Bhutan - the world's "last Shangri-la" - is an unspoiled land of fragrant pine forests and sun-dappled fields bursting with yellow flowers, where Gross National Happiness is more important than the Gross National Product. This eight-day/seven-night tour with award-winning operator Ker & Downey will show you the best of the largely undiscovered nation between India and China, with authentic experiences like a farmhouse visit, a tour of colorful capital city Thimphu and a prayer flag blessing. You'll explore everything from the highlands of the Chele La Pass, where views of Himalayas dominate, to the lowlands of Punakha, filled with ancient temples, while your English-speaking guide takes care of all the details, from ground transportation to meals. After a journey to this ancient Buddhist paradise, you'll leave with a smile on your face.

Serious hotel lovers across Asia think of this intimate refuge, in the shadow of holy Mount Agung, as a kind of secret handshake. Once you go, you're in the know, and most guests return to the black sand beachfront on Bali's less developed eastern shore every year. Designed by Kerry Hill of Aman Resorts fame, two thatch-roofed Balinese wantilans (meeting hall-style buildings) house 55 sleek but homey guestrooms, all with bijoux balconies or patios overlooking coconut groves and the Indian Ocean.

A 1960s Statement Stay in NYC

<<http://cdn.jetsetter.com/static/templates/mktg/lt-gray-pixel.gif>>

6 Columbus - New York City

<<http://click.mail.jetsetter.com/?qs=e131f3f92517d9f10174b8a25708d4c5ee427769903c37b718a95a32e0afc2e13fd90e5892e08f64>>

Just off Columbus Circle, 6 Columbus borrows heavily from mod '60s culture to make a statement on Manhattan's usually reserved west side. Mood-setting rooms are accented in hardwoods and leather, and made more striking with prints by famous Vogue photographer Guy Bourdin. With a popular restaurant and a rooftop bar where you can go incognito, the hotel delivers on its promise of a downtown-style stay at a midtown address.

When it comes to food, wine and conviviality, the Spanish seem to have it all figured out, and Hacienda Benazuza is the ultimate gourmand's paradise. Here, recipes created by famed Catalanian chef Ferran Adrià (the man behind the legendary, now defunct, El Bulli) are prepared in the hotel's brand new restaurant, Al Sur. Many foodies are lured by the connection to Adrià, but they stay to soak up an authentic Andalusian experience, with countless details that stimulate the senses at this 10th-century hillside farmhouse.

On Bukit Peninsula, near the renowned Uluwatu Temple, the Alila Villas Uluwatu's thoughtful, modern and eco-friendly design has earned it loads of awards and mentions on Hot Lists around the world. It's easy to see why: Singapore architectural firm WOHA was responsible for the clifftop hotel, where all the materials in the 84 pool villas are locally sourced. With an upscale Alila spa, two contemporary restaurants and a gorgeous infinity pool with Indian Ocean views, this hotel delivers classic Balinese ambience with a fresh style.
