By Deepak Chopra, MD For many people the current instability in Washington, coupled with a President who combines irrational whims, vindictiveness, and amorality, has become much more than alarming. A prominent figure from the Obama White House publicly mourned that we've gone from despair to disbelief. Something insane seems to be happening, and it's happening in broad daylight while the keepers of sanity stand by helplessly. For a while the situation fit into "I don't know whether to laugh or cry," and the more sinister members of the White House team have seemed as much like court jesters as mechanics carrying out a far-right agenda.
