1. Sell BUD. It is a small position with too much reliance on EM to make a mea=ingful impact right now. $431K; P/L -$51K.
2. Sell BAC. Also a very small position. Would rather re-allocate to KRE (regi=nal bank exposure). $213K; P/L +$112K. I think KRE is well positioned given the regulato=y tailwinds, strength on Main Street, no FICC reliance etc. Just to mainta=n Fins exposure. It would top KRE up to $2MM.
3. MSFT, AVGO and Equinix – part of the data center theme. I think thi= theme has legs but MSFT and EQIX positions too small. Sell those. MSFT $508K. P/L +$11K; EQIX $497K P/L +$4K.
4. JD.Com - sell if it drops below $38. It is the Amazon of China. However it =annot seem to break higher due to margin concerns. $1.9MM; P/L -$59K at current level.

Jeffrey,

New Trade Idea: SPX down 1.50% today on tariff fears=

* I recommend buying a position in each of the following:
=/>ul>

- * Jul 280 SPY calls for $0.40
- * Aug 280 SPY calls for $1.44
- * Implied vol at 10%.

* Tariff related sell-offs have offered good trading opportunities. The risk =round retaliation is growing but if we can buy these calls with a 10% implied vol, I think these could work very well at the first sign of any reconciliatory comments from Washington. I would look to trade out of these if we get a bounce back to 2750 on SPX =his week. If we don't get the bounce by Friday I would sell.

Also to further clean up the portfolio I would recom=end the following over the coming days:

1. Sell BUD. It is a small position with too much reliance on EM to make a meaningful impact right now.
2. Sell BAC. Also a very small position. Would rather re-allocate to KRE (regional bank exposure).
3. MSFT, AVGO and Equinix – part of the data center theme. I think this theme has legs but MSFT and EQIX positions too small. Sell those.<=>
4. JD.Com - sell if it drops below $38. It is the Amazon of China. However it =annot seem to break higher due to margin concerns. Currently at $39.43.
