Dear Friend,

Thanks for your email.

As you may know, it is not easy for me to type; my hands don't work very well, and typing causes me pain. On top of that, the overwhelming amount of email I get every day makes it difficult for me to keep up.

This is why you might not hear back from me—please don't take it personally. I still read email (mostly on the weekends), but can't answer most of it. I'm not wild about this approach but it's the best I have right now.

If you truly have an urgent request or something that needs to be dealt with ASAP, please send the email again with the word "urgent" in the subject line

For invitations for lectures and talks, please first check my online schedule http://danariely.com/speaking/ to see if I am free at that time. If I am, send me the invitation at dandan@ariely.com with the word "invitation" in the subject line.

I also created a "frequently asked questions" section here:
