Jeffrey,

I'm reaching out to our most influential and supportive readers to help us get the next issue of the Nautilus print edition out the door. We're trying to raise $25,000 to cover the printing and shipping costs for Issue 22. Jeffrey, I think you know better than most both the appeal of what Nautilus brings to the world and the challenges surrounding the effort. We're making a lot of headway on a possible merger or acquisition but are obviously going through a few lean months. But the most important aspect to Nautilus' survival is to provide our loyal subscribers with their magazines. Which is why we're making this appeal. I do hope you can see your way clear to making an end of year, tax-deductible donation to the cause. You can contribute via credit card or check to the address below.

I appreciate your consideration and the time you've taken to help Nautilus.

All the best,
John
