At Alaïa I did all the work the nephew didn't want to do. I reorganized ALL the archives on computer since the 80's which took me hours and hours of work and helped with the general organization. I think I contributed a lot and did everything I could. When I finished he was very happy of what I've done for him. Even if it was not paid it was work for me and experience where I have learned a lot of values. Then did babysitting and photography (both paid jobs) and now I'm a sales assistant and learning about marketing in a company. Why don't you see what I did ??? Instead of being proud of my growing you are only pointing out negative things. I don't understand...
