See e-mail below from Steve. While Steve asked that I call you, I am growing more and more concerned about where this path is leading us. At least, e-mails provide a record of what is communicated. There is a total breakdown in communications between Steve and David. See below, where Steve notes the many times he has given David the budgets that David is again requesting. As you know, in response to David saying the lenders want a list of suppliers, Steve has asked for copies of the e-mail from the lender or its servicers requesting such list. The requested transmittal was not received. If it does not exist, just tell me.

Turning to the bigger issue; please give me your insights into how we (you and I) can build trust and cooperation between Steve and David. My experience is that when the principals focus on their differences, business fail.

David has had this info

In April when he and ALAN sat and had breakfast and was handed this info

Then in October

Then last week

And just today ALAN sent him back up info that ALAN and I reviewed so ALAN could add foot notes and line up -
Line items with a narrative

But First

Howie please call randy and ask to see that e with the attachment that pertains to the restaurant the e david had sent us is regarding the construction

No more e to them regarding - just a call please

Don't need any more e

As you can see, there was no request for the names of your suppliers. How do you wish to respond?

Howie

Below is the text of the email from the lender's gate keeper requesting the information about the restaurant:

David,

Thanks can you also provide a detailed breakdown of the restaurant startup costs by line item.

I have the email that contains this request. Please let me know if there's anything else that you need. I'm available on my cell if you like to speak about this.
