[REDACTED] - how are you? Did you receive a check back from the bank? My director called and said that the bank returned your old security deposit from 28D, instead of transferring it to the new account for 35D. Once you get that check, please issue a new check for the security deposit in 35D in the balance of=$3650. You already gave me a check for the difference between the 2 amounts of I think $211.00? But now that the bank returned the original security we would need a new security check. If you don't understand this, please let me know so we can meet and I will explain it : / I know this is confusing. thx/u>
