Hi Richard,

I think Max is the one who needs to determine what his resp=nsibilities as a trustee are. I can't advise him as that wou=d be a conflict of interest with my representation of Noam. I can, h=wever, advocate for Noam and urge Max to be more liberal with regard to di=tributions. I can also let Max know that in my view he is not requir=d to confer with Harry when making his distribution decisions. Not o=ly is he not required to confer with Harry, doing so gives Harry a voice t=at the trust prohibits him from having. Perhaps I should give Max a =all to explore why he believes he needs to get Harry on board with the dec=sions, and that might help the situation. I can also write him a let=er with regard to my interpretation of the trust terms. All he is re=uires to do is to consider the interests of the remainder beneficiaries, n=ot obey them. I agree the whole thing is a bit odd. </=>

Does this help?

Thanks,</=pan>

deborah,

spoke to max. he said that the reason he was hes=tant about sending noam money was that in the past approximately 70k had g=ne to valeria.

since it was a marital trust he wanted to protect himself and =ad a duty to determine how the money was going to be spent.

he thought you woul= have a view as to his ultimate responsibility that would inform his decision. I find it odd...
