Subject: Boulle desk

Rich,

Mr. Epstein's desk is by Andre-Charles Boulle and the value is above the 1986 purchase price. However, the side mounts were replaced in the 1760's with the lion's masks (dark brown dot in each=circled area shows where original mount was). This was a normal occurrence in the 18th century to make earlier pieces more in line with current fashions.

Now, this is where it gets interesting. Sotheby=92s catalogue illustrates a cartonnier (illustrated below) which they d=scribed as "later" that came with the desk. Does Mr. Epstein have the cartonnier? It's obviously hard to say from this black and white photo, but stylistically, the cartonnier could be fro= the 1760's. If so, it was likely made at the same time the lion's =asks were put on the sides and would make the desk significantly more valu=ble.

If Mr. Epstein does have the cartonnier, we would ne=d to see it to verify its age as it will obviously impact the value we giv= him. Also, what sort of value does Mr. Epstein need? Is he possi=ly interested in selling the desk?

Kind regards,

Anne
