I spoke to Laurie Smukler. She just took over from Steven Clapp, who was yo=r friend's teacher (and head of the violin department at Julliard) until =e died very recently. Laurie has heard her play--in order to decide to tak= her as a student. Laurie is an old friend and colleague and has taught he=e for years (she has seven students at Bard). Your friend played the Sibel=us concerto for the audition and Laurie thought it was good and interestin= enough to take her on. Her first lesson is Monday. But for the time being=Laurie believes that there is sufficient reason to believe that she can ha=e a career in music. She won't necessarily become the leading soloist, but=she could become part of a major orchestra or chamber ensemble. So for the=time being, it doses not seem a total waste of time and money. Laurie will=keep mew posted. Let's see what kind of progress she makes over the next m=nths.

I hope this helps.

Leon
