I just read that your pending Florida case is set f=r trial in December. Odd one to be going to trial - malicious prosecution according to news clip. Must be personal/ego for the lawyer involved.

I assume you had a lawyer representing you when you brought=the underlying case at issue. I assume you have, among other things,=a defense based on your Reliance in the advice of counsel concerning the v=ability/legitimacy of the lawsuit that was brought.

Good luck. Hope this puts all if this litigation behin= you once and for all.

That is and always has been,=of necessity, the bread and butter of my practice. I think most lawyers with an= significant criminal defense practice or perhaps any litigation practice =ancy themselves to be adroit cross-examiners. That has not been my e=perience and you can fill in the names you already know among criminal def=nse lawyers in my view. Most often an exercise in ego, to the client=#39;s detriment, lack of prep (itself often a function of ego), and not li=tening to the witness (lawyer often stuck to a script = missed opportuni=ies in cross).

Running out now to speak now=to a group of senior citizens about a case i did at the Supreme Court and =ther Israel related issues.

Just checking in to say happy new year and see how things are going. I stopped in and saw our mutual friend in NY last week and it reminded me of you. I hope things are going well for you and that you have a great new year free from a lot of the hassles from the media and former "friends" and free from litigation. Take care.
