Good morning Sir,

I have email confirmation and can get the bank printouts along with my PayPal statements. I don't see why you need my invoices from my vendors. That's what's holding me up to be honest. I have never been through anything like this. I'm not in breach of my contract, in which case I would understand. In all actuality the hold up was VT&T, or we would have had those equipment already. But I know how things are and I'm a small businessman to your company but feel I should be treated with respect as well. You wanted my vendors I gave them to you. We even called them and I have given you more contact information than I have ever given a customer.

I've never had a customer agree on a price, payment, and given me a deposit and then ask for my invoices from my vendors. It's just not right and I feel like it's unfair.

I'm heading to the island shortly to install some TVs.

Regards,

Terrence Rabsatt

Good evening Rich,

As my first invoice stated I received 50%, which was the $130,000.00 allocated as follows ($100,000.00 to future tech, $8,000.00 to DBB limited for cabinet, $12,000.00 to abp tech for cables and misc brackets. The $12,000.00 was used for bank fees, labor, shipping, clearing and misc bolts and tools). I would have had all the equipment, if we didn't make changes to our order. We were undecided if LSJ was becoming a ISP, which meant purchasing a different router, controller, and ptp links for customers. Now that's all behind of us, I can get the remainder of the equipment which is the bulk of the money (the Radios, APs and controller). I am awaiting the second payment to have the balance of equipment released to me and finalize this job. Then no later than 2 weeks after the job is finish. I will receive final payment. At which time we can arrange any monthly service agreement, maintenance, and or operation contracts. If you have anymore questions please feel free to contact me. I understand I'm a small businessman and you are protecting your companies money. Please do remember I have made numerous changes on this project and haven't charged anything extra. FCC changes due to location, site and ISP. Extra labor dealing with the tower and piping.

I know it's my first project and I really want to do a good job. At times it's been very frustrating, but I understand and look forward to working on future projects with STC and LSJ.

Warm Regards,

Terrence Rabsatt

Good Da= Rich,

I have taken=down another section of the tower. Installed the side brackets, took measu=ements for the new top.
