Subject: Fwd: Unpleasant situation -

I have been seeing Noam incr=asingly stressed with the situation and the unfairness for him, at this st=ge of his life, having to break relation with his children. I =ecided to write to the two daughters. Below is my letter and their a=swer.

What to do??!!

Have been away of the discussion as I was seeing it as a father and children situation, that should be worked out between you, and I shouldn't get involved.

Noam can deal with the situation, but it is easy to se= that this situation would put a heavy cost on any young person. For all of us, who have passed the fifties, even more. For anyone at the age of Noam it would be extremely unfair. For Noam, who is a loving Father it is totally devastating. And I have been watching the increasing level of stress and the risks that this might impose on Noam's health and on all of us.

We all have seen how fragile life can be. One mo=ent we are here, on another we are gone, independent of age.

Life is a very limited journey and should be enjoyed w=th love, joy and friendship. But we each must take care of our own lives= We cannot invade and try to control each others lives.

I learned from Harry's petition that I have been i=olved in absentia in this situation.

Noam and I are extremely happy together, but I hope yo= realize that the situation is putting an ugly cloud on your father's li=e.
