Subject:RE: Seagrape bushes

Hello,

Right now what we have available are 25 gallon Seagrape bushes at 5-6ft tall.=All the 6-7ft tall ones have been purchased. I attached pictures of a few of them.

I have looked around as we need some for another job and I do not think you are going to find any other seagrapes then the ones I have mentioned. On the 65 gallon bushes I told you about, they have sold some so I would have to check to see how many they have still if any. The only 45 gallon I have found are 5ft tall so the 25 gallon would be a better purchase.

I will remind you that there is a shortage of plant material and what is available right now might not be available tomorrow. As you can see the sizes are going down it seems daily.

If you have any other questions please let me know.

Thanks.

If you would=please reply "Received" so I know you received this it woul= be greatly appreciated.

=greet=ings Jon,

=/u>

Our Principal is inquiring now on how many of the Sea grapes - 25 gallon, 6-7 feet tall, $225 - you have currently in stock. He is most interested in the ones that are closer to 7 feet, but he would like to know the total in the 25 gallon size. We would greatly appreciate additional photos if you can provide them.</>

<= class="MsoNormal">He would also like for you to re-inquire on the availability of any 45 gallon plants that have not yet been stepped up to the 65 gallon pots.

Thank you and kind regards, Daphne

Hello,

I just heard back on the 45 gallon seagrape bushes. The nursery that had them just stepped them up to 65 gallon pots a couple weeks ago. With that said they also raised their price on them. They are 9-10ft tall and=$50 more expensive.

As another option I have (1,000) 45 gallon seagrape trees like the ones I attached to this e-mail. These are 13-14ft tall planted with 6-7ft of clear trunk. If you planted one of these and two 25 gallon bushes like the one I attached on each side you would have a 14ft tall wall as the 25 gallon are 6ft tall. Let me know if that would work. <=>

I also have (20-30) 100 gallon seagrape bushes that are 10ft tall=by 10ft wide.

=/p>

As our disclaimer states below. I cannot guarantee this material will be available in a couple days as there is a shortage of=material in Florida right now.
