Yes Sir I thought about that. I know we have had issu=s with PSI and the mix designs of the concrete. I do have experience=pouring up to 1400 yards a day (24 hour shift) so I can oversee this direc=ly to make sure its done right. We have a few options here;

=/div>

- I will operate the machine (temporarily) until I c=n train an operator we can trust (its as complex as running a grain =ombine just need to track weights and do simple math)

=div>- Purchase a product like Vita-Concrete - this has portland cement / s=nd / agg all mixed in we just break bags and add water and I can calculate=how many lbs we need to order before pours

= Vita has premade mix designs up to 5000 psi and if we need more (dont thi=k we will) then we can use additives like fly ash to up the psi

Good Afternoon Gentlemen,

I went over to St John to see the two Carmix trucks that are for sale an= they are not worth buying. They would need total refurbishment to g=t them up and running properly. I have pictures of them if anyone wo=ld like me to send. I think if we want a mobile batch plant / mixer =e should order a new Carmix truck (5.5 XL) that can mix 7 yards per batch.=C2 I have attached the specs on this truck to this email. </=iv>

Very Respectfully,

Kyle W =eavis
