My dear jeffrey, Just want to clarify:

1. Do you want me loo=ing for two bedrooms so that certain people can also spend time there. For m=self, my priority is to be cost efficient and can manage even with an unfur=ished studio, and def with a one bedroom as long as its a decent area.

=o its up to you. And then if we are preparing for my guest(s) should it be a=separate room or would you want us to share a room.

Its all what y=u prefer as you know your plans. It makes a diff if I am looking for just m= or if I am looking to make someone in particular very comfortable there so=that they will spend time there.(Or they could possibly use it as a base wh=le sourcing furniture for you or something in Europe. Morocco is a hop away= Paris, Italy. These places all have good architectural and design things t= research.)

Up to you, as I say for me myself I would save c=sts and get decent studio unfurnished and start with a desk, a matress and p=etty trees.

2. Air B and B is way more expen=ive than something like Rightmove and dealing with agents.

=br>

3. Should I just get something for the first month of arrival=and then do a proper look when I am there.
