Happy New Year, Paul. How's the writing =oming?

I know =ou always joke, but I'm actually afraid I may end up breaking a =egacy.

Film =estivals are finally starting to respond to The Last of =he Manson Girls. The movie won "Best of Fest" at =he South Carolina Underground Film Festival in November. In December, I =on a Best Director award from the Tampa Bay Underground Film Festival. =t also won Best Supporting Actress (my wife Cindy as Sandy Good) and =est Production Design. This week, I was informed that the film will =creen at the Midwest WeirdFest in Eau Claire, Wisconsin in March and at =he Brighton Rocks Film Festival in the UK this June.

The movie also got =nterest from a sales rep who works with a guy named Jeff Dowd. My =eneration knows him as the inspiration for "The Dude" =rom The Big Lebowski, but you may remember him as one =f the "Seattle Seven," who got arrested and tried after =emi-violent Weathermen style protests. Do you know him? He seems like a =uy who was likely a fan of 'The Realist.' I'm =ot sure if I'm going to work with he and his partner, but =hey're interesting dudes.

I took a teaching job this past fall at =y alma mater in West Virginia teaching theater and film. Lots of =uegrass, old deadheads, and brownies to make the head happy. Nice =hange of pace from Trumpland.

In a separate email, I'll send =long the paperwork we talked about over the summer about an agreement =or the film. It looks like it actually may be released as an honest to =oodness movie at some point, so I want to make sure everything is =quare from your end.

I hope this finds you happy and healthy.

Best,

Lonnie
