The China Reform Friendship Medal highlights those who have helped China, in diverse areas and ways= throughout the country's historic, four-decade transformation, when China's per capita disposable income increased about 23 times, and roughly 750 million people were brought out of extreme poverty. 100 Chinese and 10 foreigners were honored; five foreigners are living, I am one of two=Americans.

I see my receiving the medal as no= so much personal but more as expressing China's enhanced appreciation of international communications. In this 'new era' of China's reform and opening up, in this transitional time of China's enhanced engagement with the world, and in this difficult period of=US-China relations, China must take international communications seriously= to tell the world the genuine, variegated, complex story of China, but also to understand world ideas and opinions more thoughtfully.

For 3= years I have been learning about China at all levels — from leaders, officials and experts to farmers, migrant workers and students — communicating what I=have been witnessing and experiencing in commentaries, interviews, books, essays, articles, TV programs, and documentaries, most recently on China's "targeted poverty alleviation campaign." To all those who have helped me along this remarkable journey, I express my profound appreciation. In the group photo session, President Xi graciously told me that they appreciate what I do and asked that I continue to do so.

Attached =re CCTV photos of the event and articles in China Daily and Xinhua (I=80m at the end). China Daily - <http://www.chinadaily.com.cn/a/201812/19/WS5c194335a3107d4c3a001816.html>
