So, Jason gets notified that he was accepted to Lynn University. In the email it also states that because of the work he has already done, they will give him a $13,000 scholarship. Jason told me that he had a good conversation with Lynn's counselor for this region and wrote some essay about his diving stuff (he is really into cuba). SO, now when Jason does something stupid I say something to the effect of 'yeah, real scholarship material'. Last night he told me "a smart person, a good salesman, can sell anything. I took this shitty kid, and sold him to Lynn and even got him a scholarship. See, I told everyone all along I will do just fine. I've been vindicated. I'm the only one of my friends so far that has gotten a scholarship". :o:p>

Hard to argue with that, damn it! :o:p; He is an Epstein. = This is good. If he didn't get into Lynn, I really had no idea what he would be doing next year.

Another funny part is that the tuition there is about $38,000. With the scholarship it will be $25,000. When Jason goes to FL, Joyce's child support gets reduced by $25,000. Free college!
